MOTAT LOCOMOTIVES

Second Edition

Auckland's Museum of Transport and Technology (commonly known as MOTAT) is home to a diverse collection of 20 locomotives, ranging from the 135-ton K 900, built in 1932, to a tiny petrol-engined British-built Planet dating from 1927. Many are maintained in full working order, including two which are more than 140 years old, e.g. L 507, the front locomotive in the bottom cover photo, which was built in 1877.

Each locomotive has its own one or two page chapter, illustrated by a fascinating selection of historical and contemporary photographs.
